

GED 06.04.842

Unknown

---

ID:	GED 06.04.842	Chronology:	190 BC	Greek designation/s:	orator
Name:	Unknown	Place of Origin:	Asia Minor Ionia Teos	Role/s:
Patronymic:
Ethnic/demotic:	Teian (Τηϊός)
Authors:	Leon Battista Borsano
Last modified:
DOI:

---

General info

Literary sources

Liv. 37 28, 1-3

Keywords

Roman-Seleucid war, plea, plunder

Missions List

Teos to Lucius Aemilius Regillus, 190 BC

Mission date

190 BC

---

Greek Designation

orator

---

Recipient

Lucius Aemilius Regillus (Roman praetor)

---

Sender

Teos

---

Envoy/Colleagues

GED 06.04.842 Unknown

---

Keywords

plea, plunder, Roman-Seleucid war

---

Commentary

These unknown envoys were dispatched by Teos to the praetor Lucius Aemilius Regillus, whose army was ravaging the territory of Teos. This episode took place in 190, in the broader context of the Roman-Seleucid war. When anchored in Samos, Regillus had learned that the Teians had supplied the Seleucid fleet with provisions. He decided to either extort the same from them, or to punish them for providing support to the enemy. The Roman navy landed in the Geraesticus port, north of the city center, and started to plunder the Teain chora. Geraesticus should correspond to the port named Gerraiidai, which was thirty stadia away from the city (Strab. 14 1, 30). The Teians sent their spokesmen to the praetor to protest their innocence; they presented themselves as supplicants, hence their use of infulae and velamenta (woolen bands, wrapped around olive branches). Regillus threatened them to deliver the same amount of supplies. The spokesmen went back to the city and a popular assembly was held to decide what to do. Eventually, the Teians agreed. They moved the Roman fleet to the main port in the south and began loading food and wine onto the ships. This obedient behaviour probably allowed the city to remain free from Attalid rule after the Peace of Apamea (cfr. Boulay 2018, 135-6; Adak, Thonemann 2022, 166-7).

Bibliography

Adak, M., Thonemann, P. (2022), Teos and Abdera. Two cities in peace and war, Oxford.

Boulay, T. (2018), 'La liberté de Téos et le soutien d'Attale II à Alexandre Balas', Syria 95, 133-154